Yes, Johnny, some things used by Eggleston & Mathew, the county road contractors, are being bought at Price. Such things as cannot be shipped in.

Persons desiring to do business with the board of county commissioners are reminded to give their address as Colorado if they would be looked upon with favor.

Farm women do not get enough credit for what they do to promote the interests of the home. Sometimes they are made to feel more like slaves than partners. This is wrong and a relic of the dark ages, when women were considered chattels.

Utah Power and Light company does things on a big scale and it is not surprising to The Sun to hear that upwards of seven hundred and fifty thousands of dollars is being appropriated for the construction of its new lines through Eastern Utah and on a generating, or central, station in Carbon county.

On August 23d the net balance in the general fund of the United States treasury at the close of business was $55,760,889 as compared with a balance of $126,663,994 on the same date two years ago under republican laws. The administration spent $27,382,411 more than it collected during the first fifty-four days of the present fiscal year.

According to the Construction News building construction in the United States for July showed a decrease of 13 per cent in comparison with the corresponding month a year ago. Practically all the large cities showed material decreases, Brooklyn alone showing an increase of 11 per cent. New York fell off 10 per cent and Chicago 29 per cent.

Wholesale prices of twenty-five leading articles of food for the second week in August were higher than for the corresponding week in 1913. This is shown by the New York Times Annalist, which gives the index number as 145.17 for 1915, as compared with 139 for 1913. And yet it was promised that democratic free trade would reduce the high cost of living!

William Jennings Bryan, in his Commoner, explains that he paid three hundred dollars for the desk and chair used by Seward, Blaine, Sherman, Hay and Root while they were serving as secretary of state. What colossal is there around Lincoln, Neb., who can make use of them. If Bryan should fall off the desk and tumble through one of the holes in the leather seat of the chair he might hurt himself.

There is but one chance in a thousand that the democrats will live up to their platform pledge and refuse to renominate Wilson. But if they should, by some near miracle, decide to keep their word to the public there is no danger that Frank P. Walsh, whom Wilson "made," will be nominated. Even the socialists wouldn't have Walsh. His only hope of becoming president lies in the day when anarchy shall rule the country.

Says the Steamboat (Colo.) Pilot of last Friday: "The visit of the Utah sociability tourists last week was a most pleasant event and has served to bring closer together the two sections. It is hoped these visits will occur more often in the future. Northwestern Colorado and Northeastern Utah have much in common. Each is a great and rich undeveloped country and they must work together for the common good. To meet, get acquainted and exchange ideas is the best way to prepare for the work of the future."

As a wheat producer Kansas sets the pace. In 1914 it sowed more wheat than Great Britain, Belgium, Japan, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Denmark and Bulgaria combined, and then had sixteen million bushels to spare. Neither Canada, Argentina nor Australia raised as much wheat as this one state, which last year was 180,000,000 bushels. The money for this wheat can support an automobile salesman for every inch in the state, according to an estimate made more or less off hand.

Along during the hot weather last month some inspired promoter got up this gem of ray serene and actually succeeded in having it run as a news item in the well known New York Times Book Review:

"Zane Grey has been forbidden the Mormon country by authorities of the Mormon church, who have notified him in direct manner that there is a price upon his head because of the frankness of his writings.

"Of course it is perfectly quite true, but where is 'the Mormon country?' It certainly is not in the United States, or else the above notice, 'in direct manner,' could have been brought to the attention of the authorities rather than to that of readers of fiction, observes Collier's Weekly.

When a farmer marries he always is referred to as prosperous. Probably the other kind don't marry.

That dollar sent to the mail order house never returns. Join the spenders who are keeping their money at home.

Automobile speeders and motorcycle fiends everywhere in the state are getting what they deserve. Why not in Price?

According to one editor, the woman of today outstrips all her predecessors. But he seems to have forgotten Mother Eve.

Most lambs must suspect that the good die young. If a lamb could think, it would explain why so many butchers grow old.

Some of the newspapers of Utah, it appears, cannot be happy unless they have troubles. To worry about selling their legitimate stock in trade is pushing the limit. No business man in other lines would allow such a proposition to cause him to lose sleep and we know one newspaper man that the problem will not bother for a single instant. The advertising columns of The Sun are open to any and every legitimate proposition—providing those desiring the advertising pay the price. The editorial columns belong exclusively to the editor and are not for sale at any price. The advertising columns are our stock in trade and we sell this space to gain a livelihood, the same as a merchant sells the goods from his shelves to anyone who may apply, the same as the banker takes a deposit without inquiring where the depositor got the money, and the same as a property owner rents his building to any applicant who planks down the coin. Our bitterest political opponent can buy our advertising space and we will express our opinion of him in our editorial columns whenever we see fit and that opinion will not be warped, biased or changed by any transaction he may have with the business end of the office.

Washington, D. C., newspapers of last Saturday print interviews with Gov. William Spry of Utah quoting him as saying: "The republicans of the Western States are beginning to express preference for candidates. My personal choice is Elihu Root. He would make the strongest and the best candidate the republicans could name, in my judgment. Senator Weeks has much strength in some Western States. So have Senators Cummins and Burton. Senator Borah is our neighbor and we like him, but I do not believe the party will go for a candidate in a state so small and unimportant politically as Idaho. While the whole country is behind the president in his negotiations with the belligerent nations of Europe, I do not take the view that this means the democrats will win a victory next year. I do not believe the European war will overshadow all other issues in this country. If the war should end, it is a certainty, in my opinion, that the republicans would win. And even should the war continue we shall be protected by an adequate tariff. The people are thinking more than ever about a tariff now. Had it not been for the European war the low tariff enacted by the democratic party would have caused a serious business depression throughout the country. Fortunately for us, the war has helped business."

THE PROPER ATTITUDE OF THE FOREIGN BORN CITIZEN.

George W. Beckel, secretary of the Brooklyn Germania, is an American whose citizenship is not to be questioned. Lately he wrote a letter, which appears in the Christian Science Monitor, declaring that German-Americans should renounce their allegiance to their former country or renounce their United States citizenship. He is outspoken and says:

"I would like to take this opportunity of expressing my personal views on the attitude of a great many German-Americans to you. Our constitution is very clear on the point of citizenship and the oath administered to foreigners who become United States citizens includes that they absolutely renounce their allegiance to their former country and swear allegiance to the United States flag, which means that they must support the United States flag whether the same is right or wrong in their estimation. They should do this especially in such critical times as we have been having for the past year. If they cannot consistently do so there is only one way open to them—to renounce their United States citizenship, otherwise they are committing high treason. There are no two ways out about this matter."

BENEFIT SHOULD BE HAD FROM THE NEW JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL.

Statistics show that only one child out of fourteen in our school systems ever reach the high school. Ninety per cent of American children must acquire their education before they are fourteen years old. This year an effort is being made in Utah to remedy this situation somewhat by shortening the terms of elementary and grammar school studies and introducing studies that formerly were exclusively part of the high school curriculum.

Years ago it was thought that it took the average child eight years to learn arithmetic, reading, writing, spelling and a smattering of history and geography. This idea has been thrown to the discard, however, for it has been found that the elements of these studies can be learned in less than half that time.

The "three R's" are learned in the elementary grades. Considering that so great a proportion of children quit school after the grammar years have been passed, it is extremely worth while that the grammar school system be bettered. Employers complain that children coming to them from the public schools are frequently unprepared in the very elements of education—flimsy information, inability to write or spell or figure accurately, and bad memories. The facts are, however, that these elements were learned in the first years at school, but a leakage has come in the later years.

But things are moving rapidly. Educators have felt the sting of business men's criticisms to advantage, and every year the grammar school child is being turned out with a more or less education. Considering the disparity between numbers, this is of more importance to the state than super-excellent high schools. The education that gets down to all the people is the education that raises all the people.

IT'S HARD TO TELL

COMMISSIONERS IN SESSION

Proposition By Mr. Beatty Regarding Taxes Is Agreed To.

The board of county commissioners met in regular session Tuesday, all members being present. Mr. Beatty, tax agent for the Denver and Rio Grande, met with the board and made the commissioners a proposition that he deduct the 8 per cent interest on old judgment running since the 1st of June, this year, and take a warrant for the judgment and interest to date, the same to draw interest at the rate of 5 per cent from now until the date of payment of taxes. He gave the board the assurance that no other warrants would be presented for payment in lieu of cash. Ordered that a warrant be issued to Mr. Beatty for 5 per cent from old date and the same to draw 5 per cent until the payment of taxes.

D. Bergera was granted a liquor license at Sunnyside and was required to file bond for six hundred dollars, the same to take effect October 1st. County Surveyor Forester presented a map showing the newly surveyed boundary line between Carbon and Emery counties as made and accepted by himself and the Emery county surveyor.

John Hkiri was granted a liquor license at Spring Glen. The same is to be under the regular quarterly regulations. The bond of A. Homelwright as justice of the peace at Keatsworth was approved. N. A. Williams was present and asked that the former bond of County Superintendent Golding be released and returned to his company. After allowing a number of bills the board adjourned.

PAY NO MONEY TO THE NEWS-ADVOCATE

The Sun once more advises subscribers to the now defunct Eastern Utah Advocate to pay no money on subscription account prior to July 14, 1915, to the News-Advocate of W. C. Benfer. The obituary notices under which the Eastern Utah Advocate plant and fixtures were foreclosed included "Mailing list and subscription books of the Eastern Utah Advocate." The alleged sale of the subscribers and mailing lists of the defunct Eastern Utah Advocate is simply an attempt upon the part of W. C. Benfer and the gang associated with him to get something for nothing. Pay no money to Benfer or the News-Advocate on subscription account to Eastern Utah Advocate is The Sun's advice.

WHY "THE SUN" GOES TO MAN

The Sun's management has no desire, whatever, to force the newspaper upon anyone who does not want it. It is being mailed at this time if those who are receiving it in place of the now defunct Eastern Utah Advocate want The Sun discontinued it is a very matter to do so. Just notify the postmaster, The Sun office by letter, postal card, or telephone or any employee personally. When The Sun was established it was a foregone conclusion that the Eastern Utah Advocate was soon to be a thing of the past. Feeling that persons who had paid their money for the Advocate are entitled to a newspaper, The Sun in many instances has been very kind in making the Advocate for the time they have paid in advance for the Advocate.

In the litigation in connection with recovering the printing plant of the Advocate, the manager of The Sun was Judge Christensen of the district court awarded the subscribers and the mailing lists of the Advocate. The manager of The Sun felt it obligatory, under these conditions, to see that former subscribers to the Advocate were taken care of. Probably seven-tenths of the subscribers of the now defunct Advocate are friends and acquaintances of the editor and manager of The Sun. The Sun anticipates that the greater portion of these will remain loyal to The Sun.

THE SUN'S ADVICE IS TO PAY NO MONEY ON SUBSCRIPTION ACCOUNT TO THE EASTERN UTAH ADVOCATE OR THE NEWS-ADVOCATE.

TO PROTEST LAND SALE

State Seeks to Intercept Patent Local Federal Grant.

The state of Utah, through G. Iverson, assistant to the attorney general, last Friday filed a petition for granting of a patent through an act by the federal government, lands in Section 24, Township 36 South, Range 3 East, in Carbon county, near Castle Gate, Cyrus W. Benfer of Denver made application for the land in July, asking permission to use it for cash.

Through some mistake the patent did not go through as quickly as it might have and the state now has decided to intercept the sale if possible. Iverson says that the land is in school section which the state claims under the enabling act and that claim has been strengthened by the fact that in 1902 some of the land in this same section was filed as agricultural land and that it is two other parts of the same section were filed upon.

The three persons having filed the land have demonstrated that it is agricultural land, he says, and it should go to the state and be subject to entry as mineral land by the United States government.
